

What is a tenancy agreement?

If you rent your home from a landlord, you should have a written agreement.

For most people who rent, this is called a tenancy agreement.

You and your landlord both sign the tenancy agreement as it is a legal contract.

If your landlord does not follow the rules in the tenancy agreement, contact the Learning Disability Helpline for advice as soon as you can.

If you do not follow the rules in your tenancy agreement, you might be asked to leave your home.

If your landlord asks you to leave your home, do not leave and contact the Learning Disability Helpline for advice as soon as you can.

You can telephone the Learning Disability Helpline on 0808 808 1111

You can email the Learning Disability Helpline at Helpline@mencap.org.uk

First published by Mencap 26/01/2023

Last update: 10/05/2023